Otto Mättas

245867IAXD

Making AI Think Both Fast and Smart: Estonian Research Breakthrough

Taltech researchers are developing smarter artificial intelligence that combines two different ways of thinking - like merging human intuition with logical reasoning. This new approach helps AI systems make better decisions while being more transparent about their choices. The research could revolutionise public services, making government AI assistants like Bürokratt more reliable and trustworthy. Early tests show promising results in helping citizens access public services more efficiently.